Springpod—Virtual work experience opportunities

Acquiring traditional face to face work experience has been challenging this past year but with the challenge there has been the significant development of a whole new approach. The virtual model of offering work experience has opened up some really interesting new opportunities.

Whether you intend to apply to university and want experiences to reflect on in your personal statement, are planning to apply for apprenticeships/entry roles and want to have experiences to reflect on in your application forms and interviews, or just want to explore a field to inform your future decision making, virtual work experience can be highly beneficial. Below is a link to Springpod's upcoming virtual work experience opportunities. You will need to apply for these but to find out more and to see application deadline dates and programme start dates, please see the link below:
