NHS England—Apprentice Nuclear Medicine Technologist

England

‘The commitment of our 17,100 staff is key to our success. We are one of the largest local employers and we aim to develop and support all our staff so they are able to deliver high quality, safe and efficient care. The 2018 NHS staff survey results show that we have one of the most engaged and motivated workforces in the NHS. We know this has a positive impact on the care provided to our patients.’

Are you interested in a career in healthcare that involves science and technology, caring for people, using sophisticated equipment, where every day is a challenge? Are you interested in a new career where you work and train, earn a salary and study for a degree? If so, then maybe you could become a Nuclear Medicine Technologist!

An exciting opportunity has arisen within the Nuclear Medicine Department to train as a Nuclear Medicine Technologist. The successful candidate will be trained as part of the national Practitioner Training Program three year apprenticeship. On successful completion, you will have a recognised degree in Healthcare Science (Medical Physics Technology) specialising in Nuclear Medicine from the University of West England, which will allow you to be registered with the Register of Clinical Technologists (RCT) and work as a Nuclear Medicine Technologist.’

Location: Guy's and St Thomas' NHS Foundation Trust, London

Closes: 24th June 2021
